EBM and Professor Huang Wei-Chun, director of the Center of Critical Medicine at Rongmin General Hospital in Kaohsiung, collaborated to offer Miaoli County Fire Department 12 Pre-Hospital ECG Systems. Today, during the donation ceremony, Professor Huang, Mr. Huang's father and EBM Chairman Mr. Pan donated 12 high-tech devices, making Miaoli County the 7th city in Taiwan acquiring this type of technology.

In 2013, Kaohsiung was the first city to benefit from the Pre-Hospital ECG System, making it a precursor city. The Pre-Hospital ECG System has been created to detect myocardial infarction directly by firefighters or in the ambulance and reduce the diagnosis time once at the hospital. It helps the medical team to save more patients lives by reducing D2B (Door to Ballon Time); quickly clearing the blockage heart vessel of patients'.

In 2014, Ylan County, Taichung County, Changhua County, Yunlin County and Hsinshu County have also been able to benefit from the Pre-Hospital ECG System, supporting them preserving Taiwan's heartbeat !

Taiwan new government announced that hospital will now be encouraged and recommended to use the EBM Pre-Hospital ECG System; a decision based on all the positive feedbacks and results about the device since it is up and running. The government appealed to the generosity of the company to finally equipped Miaoli County, the last major city without this technology.

Present to the donation ceremony, Professor Huang, the spread head and the first to believe in the Pre-Hospital ECG System. It is him and his hard persistent work that enables the ECG system to spread from cities to cities saving lives. In addition to providing Kaohsiung a solution for heart disease urgencies, he also assisted all the hospitals in diagnosing ECGs and in collecting all the ECG data, acquired from all these cities which have Pre-Hospital ECG systems in place, to support medical teams.

Because losing someone over a myocardial infarction when solutions exist is regrettable, Professor Huang, his father Mr. Huang Ding-Son and EBM decided to offer 12 Pre-Hospital ECG System to Miaoli County, a million NT worth donation, in partnership with Miaoli County Heartbeat Association.
